

Artist's conception of the 6.5 million Life Science building to face on 19th Ave. It is scheduled for completion in the fall, 1968

$6.5 million for high-rise

By DAVE SWANSTON

An eight-story, $65 million Life Science Building moved a step closer to becoming an SF State reality recently with the approval of cost estimates and schematic plans by the Board of Trustees of the California State Colleges.

The building, scheduled for completion in the fall of 1968, will face 19th Ave. on part of what is now the women's athletic field. It will contain 105,000 feet of useable floor space, and will house 14 laboratories which can accommodate 320 students. The building will be used primarily for experimentation and research by professors and graduate students.

There will be three micro-biology laboratories (sanitation, physiology, and medical bacteriology), three botany laboratories (general botany, botany of lower plants and plant physiology) one genetics laboratory and seven zoology laboratories.

In addition to the laboratories, there will be a green house, and animals' quarters and two lecture halls. The building will have its own pumping system and supply of sea water.

Cut into an incline, the building will have two floors below ground level. The third floor will be an open colonnade and the remaining five floors will be fronted with glare-reducing glass panels.

Robert Thornton, dean of the school of natural sciences, termed the structure "an unusual kind of building," explaining that it was not usual for the State Colleges to undertake large programs of scientific research.

"The building is the first concrete symbol toward greater achievement in this direction," he said.

Thornton explained that the new building would allow space which is not presently available, for research, but he added professors' first consideration would still be teaching.

"We are very conscious of the dangers and trends that could develop," he said. "But research does not mean neglect of teaching."

AFT ponders pay cut--boycott or mass PR

A Commencement boycott and a public relations campaign have been suggested by some SF State faculty members as possible methods of defeating the 1.8 professor's salary pay cut.

According to "The Academic Statesman," a publication of the SF State chapter of the American Federation of Teachers, these proposals are being considered by faculty members:

Otto Butz, associate professor of interdisciplinary studies, has suggested starting a campaign to "educate the public as to the full dimensions and implications of the handicaps under which the State Colleges are in fact operating."

Butz called for a three step campaign involving paid newspaper advertisements, television and radio contacts and press coverage.

Another suggestion, by Charles Mayo, assistant professor of political science, calls for all State College professors to boycott commencement activities as a sign of dissatisfaction with the actions of the Chancellor's office and the state legislature.

"Pennies for Profs," and "Help Balance Dumke's Budget."

Motivated by the recent salary cut, the group is dedicated to rallying public support for a re-appraisal of the entire State College educational system. Yesterday they collected almost seven pages of signatures and a proliferation of pennies.

Fair attracts student horde

By PAUL SCANLON

As the lilting strains of "Watermelon Man" and "Goldfinger" wafted across the campus, the annual Activities Fair roared into full swing yesterday.

Students on the road between the Commons and the Library found themselves running a gauntlet of booths, barkers, and balloons representing the numerous campus organizations and activities.

Offering a potpourri of pamphlets, sales pitches, and souvenirs, the Fair attracted hordes of the curious into the afternoon.

Dave Otey, student director of organizational affairs, was pleased with the first-half results of the Fair, which continues today.

"helped tremendously" by spicing the Fair with music and interviews. With an outdoor studio set up by the Commons, the radio crews offered a steady stream of music, disc jockey patter, and organization plugs.

Ironic groupings sprang up all along the line of booths, the most notable being the sandwiching of the Young Democrats between the Young Republicans and the Young Americans for Freedom.

The YAF, a group dedicated to the promotion of conservative principles, was displaying copies of John Stormer's "None Dare Call It Treason" and Phyllis Schafley's "The Gravediggers."

At the other end of the ideological spectrum, five booths down the road, the Anti-HUAC Coordinating Council was proffering copies of "Un-American," a satirical series of jabs at HUAC.

The Humanist booth, offering a variety of literature on the Viet Nam situation, was one of the most heavily attended during the day. Meanwhile, down at the end of the road near the Gym, Marine Aviation recruiters spent much of the day in lonely splendor, casting jaundiced eyes on the more popular attractions.

A new group on campus, an ad hoc committee titled "Student Aid for Needy Profes-

Ryan today

Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan (Dem-Burlingame) will discuss a new teaching credential law he has authored at a meeting of the Student California Teachers Association today in Ed. 117.

Ryan, in his 3:30 speech, will detail his reasons for proposing a law that would require a two-year internship for all teachers. The public is invited.

Rexroth to speak today

A noted San Francisco poet and critic will outline the reasons "Why American Poetry Is Culturally Deprived" at a speech today in the Main Auditorium.

Kenneth Rexroth, also a recognized translator and journalist, will appear at 1 p.m. Admission is free.

His appearance marks the second in a series of lectures presented this semester by the College Lecture Series.

Rexroth also visited the campus Tuesday to read selections of his poetry. The event was sponsored by the SF State Poetry Center.

Letters to the editor

Search for truth

Editor:

From the recent account of Mr. Persico's "presidential beef," it seems as if the sponsor of the Presidential Prayer Breakfast should have been indicated in the invitation. However, I doubt that this objection would have been raised had a non-governmental group more favorable to Mr. Persico been the sponsor.

At the heart of Persico's objection is his failure to realize that there is perhaps no more relevant answer to the "brotherhood of man" and the "spiritual needs of mankind" than the answers proposed by Christ. Christ claimed He had the answer not just for one-fourth of the world, as Mr. Persico feels, but for all the world. Christ's outreach toward all antagonized people in His day; it continues to do so today, it seems.

While Christians have not lived up to the high standards set by Christ in the spirit of brotherly love inherent in the Great Commandments, it is refreshing to know that secular leaders are convinced that Christ's teachings should not be relegated to a dark corner of a cathedral. In saying that "Had I been aware of this (that the breakfast was being sponsored by International Christian leadership) I would not have attended," Mr. Persico shows that no matter what he is basing his "brotherhood of man" upon, he is not ready to be a brother but merely a dissenter. A true agnostic should, in his careful search for truth, be ready to consider all claims of belief and of the relevancy of all spiritual values to modern life.

Two IR profs sign petition

Two SF State professors of international relations recently signed a petition sent to President Lyndon B. Johnson calling for Vietnam peace through United Nations action.

Marshall Windmiller and Urban Whitaker joined 25 other Bay Area citizens and the American Friends Committee to protest US retaliatory air strikes in North Vietnam. The protest was announced at a recent press conference at the St. Francis Hotel.

The letter to the President said in brief: "Although we recognize the challenge to US involvement in South Vietnam . . . we feel further retaliatory bombing against North Vietnam can only multiply the tragedy to mankind. . . . we wish that you chose direct resources of the US for a peaceful solution . . . we ask the US government not to continue . . . the war with retaliatory attacks . . . and seek a negotiated settlement with the United Nations."

"The UN was created to handle problems like the Vietnam situation," Windmiller said, "and we have avoided the UN."

Windmiller said that although the UN is "in serious trouble, what else can we do? When the world goes mad all we can do is the best with certain deficiencies."

President Johnson's decision to expand the war was conceived from political and domestic reasons, rather than in view of the drastic situation in South East Asia, he said.

"Although the UN budget is having difficulties, the problem in the Vietnam situation should have gone to the United Nations first," he added.

"At this point it may be difficult for the UN to intervene and solve the crisis. But the situation is quite desperate and there are few other alternatives left."

Whitaker said that he did not wish to make a comment on UN intervention until he has "covered the situation close enough to even discuss it."

Students arrested after 10 police car pursuit

A SF State student was arrested in Oakland recently for a number of traffic violations. The arrest came after a frantic chase involving the student and 10 police cars.

The student, James P. Popovich, a senior chemistry major, and Henry Maze, a student at California State College at Hayward, were arrested after their car rammed a police car.

According to police, the two fled after hitting the rear of another car at 27th and Broadway. They were pursued by police at speeds up to 80mph.

The annual West Coast Regional Seminar of the Student Zionist Organization (SZO) is scheduled for Feb. 26-28 at Camp Saratoga in the Santa Cruz Mountains.

The SZO is a college organization attempting to foster and increase an understanding of modern Israel.

"Israel the Land of the Future," is the theme of the conclave. Students from 10 universities are scheduled to participate.

Speakers scheduled for the weekend include Robert Keller, West Coast Director of the Jewish Agency for Israel, Mordechai Eran of the Berkeley faculty, Ray Levine of the American Hebrew Congregations and Joel Brooks of the SZO.

Letters to the e Gator cagers's fizzle 64-59

By JERRY LITRELL
Gator Sports Editor

There wasn't much for the Gators to write home about Tuesday night when they went against the Cal Aggies.

The Staters lost the game, 64-59, but they were lucky it was even that close.

The loss put idle Chico State, 8-3, back into first place in the Far Western Conference, percentage points ahead of the Gators, 7-3.

The Aggies opened up an early 8-2 lead on their SFS city cousins and gradually built that up to a 10-point halftime advantage, 31-21, the lowest score the Gators have tallied in one half all season.

Then Davis, the leading defensive team in the FWC, quickly ran up a 14-point margin in the opening moments of the second half as time and again the Gators' offensive efforts were thwarted.

LOWEST SCORE

The 59-point output was the lowest FWC score by the Gators this season and the second lowest score of the entire season. They scored 57 against Southern Illinois.

In the second half the Gators managed to close the gap once at 38-44 but the big front line of Ralph Johnson, Don Moore and Bill Story quickly shot the Davis team out in front with nine rapid points.

During that low scoring first half the Gators missed 10 shots from within three feet of the basket. Combined with the five others they missed in the second half, the Gators lost a possible 30 points through their inability to sink the easy ones.

A typical example occurred in the first half when Everett (Goose) Adams stole the ball from Aggie guard J. B. Hollis and raced down court only to have his shot roll around the rim and out.

Time and again the Aggies tried to give SF State the advantage as they were caught traveling, palming and losing the ball out of bounds.

HOT HAND

But the Gators couldn't capitalize or even do basic moves right. The shots weren't falling at all. The Aggies shot an astounding 59.5 per cent from the floor (25x42) while the Gators took 33 more shots to sink the same amount of buckets (25x75) for a 33 per cent mark.

Then to make matters even worse when the shots didn't fall the Gators pressed that old panic button. They neglected to run through set offensive plays and started forcing shots.

The rebounding game of SF State was also affected by the Gators' missed shots. The rebounding duo of Joe Galbo and Jon Crawford stood around as if awestruck when Gator shots rolled in and out and the alert Aggie front line cleaned the boards repeatedly.

SOLID EFFORT

Taking nothing away from the Aggies, who played a cool, calm and collected ball game, the Gators not only didn't play well as a team they didn't even play well as individuals.

Once in a great while Adams would show a flash of brilliance but aside from that the starting five wasn't much to brag about.

Guard Bill Nocetti came on as a welcome relief for Denny Lewis midway through the final half and played his usual fine ball-handling game but praise must end there.

The veteran Lewis had his poorest effort of this year as a Gator as did the usually reliable Terry Stogner. Galbo scored 16 points but only got three rebounds and Crawford hooked his way to 15 points but was only on the boards six times.

So now the Gators go into the final weekend of conference play needing two wins to put them in a post-season playoff berth.

Friday they battle Sacramento State with the league's leading scorer, Lynn Livie, and then Saturday play the defending champion University of Nevada with their record setting forward Nap Montgomery.

SF nine still winless after 8-3 Don loss

USF prevailed in a battle of the losers Tuesday, beating SF State's baseballers, 8-3, at the Dons' diamond.

Each team entered the game with 0-2 records, and each took turns trying to maintain

Grapplers end with SJS tie

San Francisco State's wrestling team ended its dual meet season Monday with a 16-16 tie against San Jose State at the Spartan Gym.

The tie gives the Gators a 5-5-1 record for the season, with only the Far Western Conference championships remaining this weekend.

The five wins are the most an SF State team has ever accumulated in one season.

Bill Simmons took a 3-0 decision over San Jose's Art Beatty in the 137-pound class; Jim Burke (157) won by forfeit over Carl Dommeyer; Bob Hewitt (167) pinned Mike Herschfelt; and heavyweight Craig Preisendorf beat Ray Lychak 3-0.

its perfect record. The Gators were successful.

SF State scored two earned runs in the first inning after two outs. With Don Meroff on second, the Don shortstop threw Tom Martinez' grounder away, and Meroff scored. Martinez scored when third sacker Dick Schultze lined a triple past USF centerfielder Rick Musante, who misjudged the ball.

USF tied the score in the bottom of the third with two hits, a walk and an error.

The next inning, Gator pitcher Don Taylor was relieved by John DeVos after giving up three straight safeties with one out. With one on and two runs in, DeVos gave up a base on balls and bunt base hit to load the bases. A wild throw home on an ensuing grounder let in a third run.

SF narrowed the margin to 5-3 in the sixth when Wayne Morgan singled, went to second on an error, and Bob Ignoffo singled him home.

The Dons added two runs in the seventh and one in the eighth to wrap up the game.
